

Hooked

The quick and ready bite of Spring goes sour
w/ Summer lurking, when fishing for love—
How April to May, so-heartfills the soul
To cast a line no doubt!, thus enjoys boom
Of the pre-spawning beam life unfill
By any size and amount Sport so-grooms
Enticed to take the Lark-or-Rivers' haul
Before the sun rises to sunset, hooks
Baited big to catch and snag successful—
To cast a line no doubt!, what pleasure hooks
On the scenic state of Being faithful
When love-lettering Catfishing's dear time—

Sea-Breeze

Always— I return to someone
Always— as if by ritual, not fun
To the big bright shore and sip
Of light, of sea, of breeze & grip—
Holds snug about my body, a caress
Like a lovers' foreplay to sundress.
Belighted by moments of footprint in sand
And retain her Summer and Autumn hand,
If I may, if I might — I'd return
For careered vacation gives Love a turn—
