

Time For February's Big Event!

2-8-26

1 of 1

It's Sunday, February 8th ... are you watching the Big Game today!? Every year around this time there's a HUGE TV event seen all across the country, and I think maybe even all around the world. I'm sure you know what I'm talking about — I think everyone does. But strangely, no one here in this prison is planning to watch it at all. Most inmates truly seem to not even know it's on today.

Can you imagine!?

Not paying any attention to

The 22nd Annual PUPPY BOWL?

Well, this year, there's a lot of hype over the game. With players on both teams like Chappell Bone and Ru Paw, how not?! It's gonna be an intense contest for this year's Lombarky Trophy, no doubt about it.

I sure hope you all get to see it (and since this will post late, if you somehow missed it, check out the highlights on YouTube!)

I did hear one weird rumour, though. They're saying in some off-the-grid type places where the Puppy Bowl isn't airing, they might show some kind of... like, a football game, I think? It's just a rumour so far, and like you, I really can't imagine anyone intentionally choosing to watch a bunch of millionaires holding their balls over the esteemed Puppy Bowl. Sounds bogus to me. Tell me if you heard that same nonsense, ok?
