

Ms. Amnesia, Hello! Even if you haven't written to me for a little while, you really can't say you're "not much of a writer". The letters I have gotten from you have always been long and packed full of wonderful conversation! A little slowdown doesn't change that at all. ☺ Also, even if you've been quiet here on BTS recently, you're still one of the all-time most frequent and substantial commenters for me, and I'm willing to bet you comment others so nicely as well. So don't say things like that!

☺ Thanks for letting me know you haven't forgotten me, and also that you're alright (more or less... what's going on with those sound-wave headaches!?! ARE you alright?) I understand things aren't great for you ATM, but are you at least still gaming? I know how important that's been to you.

As for who has it worse... ugh. It's never great to try and rank miseries, right? Yours are yours and mine are mine — what does "worse" even mean in that context? Everyone has their cross(es), right?

Take care, I hope you're better soon. Did you receive my short letter with the new mailing address? Here it is again:

Take care!! ☺

(And it's for anyone who'd like to write)

Dymitri Harszewski
AC2622 B-Facility
P.O. Box 441
China CA 91708