"DIRTY LOOKS"

Ronald Wayne Clark Jr

I've been getting a lot of dirty looks today September 2, 2026 from Administrative Sgt's walking through here, so my guess is someone finally showed them the emails sent out yesterday, which contains the essay Beyond Belief, and the Informal Grievance to the Institutional Inspector, asking for a full blown investigation into this chemical agent that was intentionally released on to the wing Monday. They can get mad all they want, I don't care! I ask for one simple thing! FOLLOW THE RULES! And everything else will then fall into place with them having honor, integrity, not lying and falsifying documents and just the all around compliance of 33-208.002 Rules of Professional Conduct. Several months ago I was coming back from an attorney visit, a bunch of Administration Sgt's and CO's was standing around at the desk by the control room, they said, "Clark have you had clemency yet? I said no, why you want to know? They said because when you do, we're going to have a party!" laughed and kept walking. The officer escorting me said, "Were they serious?" I said yes." He said you handled that good." He was impressed that I just laughed it off. Getting mad about it won't do anything. Plus I know I'm a thorn in their behind! I'm the reason they can't get away with most of the bull they want to do. When I arrived back the wing, I immediately called my wife and told her what had just taken place (that phone call is held in the GTL file for 5 years), anyways my wife was pissed! I laughed and said baby its nothing to get mad about. She said, "How would you feel if someone joked about me dying and them wanting me to die?" I understood her point. Most of what these people say and do, I don't even report. Your saying how's that, with everything you write. Look I just touch here and there on the stupidity around here, when these people frustrate me. These people make it easy for me to write something every single day!! I kid you not! The stupidity is off the chain! I wish I could praise the good officers. Unfortunately I don't want to put a target on their back. I got shook down a couple of times over the past month or so. I actually thanked the officers. They were what? Cause they did take stuff that I didn't want to lose. I said, I'm not thanking you for taking my bowl and food. I'm thanking you for going by the rules. While sitting here writing this, a Lt walked by, stepped back and talked to me for a few minutes. He asked what I was doing. I showed him my tablet. He said I'm trying to get to know everyone and there names. I showed him my ID. I also inquired about the cold water kegs. I asked who was suppose to allow the runners to bring the water keg on the wing, he said the wing officer, I explained there's some confusion about that, whether its the wing officer or day room officer. He said he would look into it. But when he said that he's still trying to learn names. I laughed to myself. lol My name bounces around out there like super ball! If they are new, they usually know who I am fairly quick. But its only because of the poor leadership that allows this conduct like the breaking of these pepper balls the Monday intentionally releasing chemical agents on the wing. Several years back, you had one Administrative Rec officer fired because he took an inmates ID card, went to the canteen and ordered I believe it was $7. worth of food, stealing from the inmates family who sent him the money. Do you know why that officer done that? Because he seen these Sgt's doing it. That officer picked the wrong inmate to steal from. That inmate got Regional Director John Palmer up here, and that officer was gone. You've got staff trying to get inmates assaulted by other inmates here on death row! I've written about this several times, and I know my writings just like this one, reaches the top. That's why they know who I am. Years ago I was walking down the hall, the Assistant Warden said how are you doing Clark? I said fine how about yourself? The officer escorting me said , "Damn they know your name, but don't know mine." I said that's not necessarily a good thing. They know mine because I'm constantly trying to change something usually the unprofessional conduct taking place. But yes I've been getting so many dirty looks today that its not funny. If they plant a shank retaliate well you know why! Cause I don't even have a water bug to heat my food with. I haven't cooked in months! Since this stupid battle started. All I can say is, stay tuned for the next stupid thing they do. And remember a coward can't accomplish anything in life, including bulling inmates. God bless.
